

THE TRIBUNE.

Friday, - May 16, 1902.

Dan White spent Sunday in Warrenton.

A. W. Ferguson spent Sunday in St. Louis.

J. W. Perkins of Bellflower was in this city Monday.

Jim Ball and J. W. Jacks were in Jonesburg Sunday.

Ernest Leirheimer of Benton City is spending the week here.

Born to Rev. C. A. Mitchell and wife, Wednesday May 14th, a fine boy.

Dave Jennings and wife were the guests of relatives at Jonesburg Sunday.

Ben McCleary came up from St. Louis to spend a few days with homefolks.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. White attended the Davault funeral at Jonesburg Monday.

Mrs. W. J. Buchanan of Eolia, Mo. was the guest of William Gilchrist and family this week.

Mrs. R. S. Paul and little Miss Pauline returned from a visit to relatives at Warrenton Monday.

The Colored Teachers' Institute will be held at this place this summer. The date will be announced later.

Contention school district, east of town, recently treated herself to a woven fence and a number of young growing shade trees. Other districts will do well to pattern if they need trees.

Tom Brown received a letter the first of the week from his son Charles at Harper, Kans., where he is now engaged in farming. He has 70 acres of corn. He says the wheat crop there is estimated at about one half.

A snake 7 and 1-2 feet long pulled out of his winter robe, and the shedded skin was found by J. R. Smith on his farm about 6 miles west of town last week, who brought it into town and placed it on exhibition at the TRIBUNE office. Mr. Smith thinks it was a black snake but the skin is of a light appearance for a black snake. Should the killing of this snake, or one as long, occur we will no doubt hear of it.

Better Cut This Out.

Every mother should be quickly suspicious of worms when her children act as if they were going to be sick. Worms are known to be the first cause of much ill health. Young and old very often are suffering from worms when a mother thinks it is something else. Remember a very harmless yet always effective, remedy for stomach, tape or pin worms, is a 25 cent bottle of Mothers' Worm Syrup.

James Ball went to St. Louis Monday.

Guy Nunnally went to Warrenton Monday.

Luther Bordeaux spent Sunday with homefolks at New Florence.

Mrs. James Whitesides went to St. Louis Sunday to visit a few weeks.

Sam Sharp and E. B. Pegram were attending circuit court at Fulton Monday.

Mrs. C. J. Locke and Mrs. G. P. Vogt attended the funeral of Prof. Davault at Jonesburg Monday.

The Echo Orchestra has been engaged to play for a big barn party at Ray Gill's in Callaway county on the 23rd.

Miss Edle Duenkle returned Sunday afternoon from Alton, Ill., where she had been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Ollie Bailey the past month.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Nieburg of Wright City came up Saturday and went out to visit the latter's parents Mr. and Mrs. Middlekamp at Bellflower.

The W. C. T. U. will hold a called meeting in the Hall next Monday, May 19 at 5:30 p. m. An interesting meeting is anticipated. All members solicited to be present, and all interested invited.

Miss Florence Vandaver very nicely celebrated her eleventh birthday last Wednesday by inviting a number of her little school mates to spend the night with her. They truly had a happy time.

Miss Permella C. Mahan will be in Montgomery County the latter part of this month, and hold the Montgomery County Institute in Mineola, May 27 - 28.

Miss Mahan will stop over in Montgomery Monday, May 26, and give a recital for the benefit of the Union here. Miss Mahan is well known in this community. She stands in the front ranks as a lecturer, and as a reader, she has few equals. She is a graduate of the Columbia School of Oratory of Chicago, and her recitals are first class in the fullest meaning of the term.

There will be a general admission fee of 10c. Everybody solicited to set aside 10c for this very excellent entertainment, and thereby help in advancing a good cause.

Watch for program.

HOW CONTAGIOUS IS SPREAD.

In these days we have most of us learned the lesson that contagion—that is to say the "catching" quality of a disease is in every case a matter of a specific microbe or germ. By specific is meant that each disease has its own microbe, and one cannot catch the disease except by receiving in one way or another that particular germ.

These germs have their own manners and customs, means of travel and prescribed length of life, and it is by the study of these details that we learn how to avoid the transmission of contagious illness. We know, for instance, that to get typhoid fever or cholera the microbe has to be taken into the system in the form of impure food or water, and so every year more and more precautions are taken to have the water-supplies of our big cities free from contamination, and stricter attention is given to the purity of our food. An outbreak of typhoid fever is no longer considered in the old sense a "visitation of Providence," but is recognized as a shame and a reflection on local conditions, wherever it occurs.

Consumption and whooping-cough, we know, are passed from one person to another by means of the expectorations, and it is to be hoped that in the near future we shall put this knowledge to better use than we do at present, and protect ourselves by much more stringent rules. General expectation is a public offense and menace, and should be made a penal matter. The danger with expectorated matter is that it dries and is then scattered by the wind so that one and all must take the risks. This outrage should be so handled by all in authority that in the near future the present condition of our cars and streets will seem like an evil nightmare.

Scarlet fever and diphtheria are caught by any emanations from the body, especially the saliva. The poison can cling for months and years to clothes and toys and books, and these things should always be destroyed if they have come in contact with the sick, and sick rooms should be fumigated and scientifically clean before they are again occupied.

Notwithstanding all our precautions there will always be disease germs, but the most virulent germ can do no harm unless it finds its proper soil, and there is no armor to compare with the resistant power of perfect health.—Youths Com-

A Candidates First Speech.

Beriah Wilkins, owner of the Wahsington Post, was formerly a representative in Congress from Ohio. He tells with great glee a story about his first campaign. When he was nominated he had never made a public speech. Soon after the convention a delegation came to him from a small town in his district and asked him to come out to a ratification meeting. Wilkins said he would, but cautioned the delegation against asking him to speak. They said it would be alright, as they had provided two professional spellbinders. All Wilkins would have to do, they said, would be to shake hands and kiss the babies. Wilkins went, was met by a brass band and escorted to the hall. Then, to his utter dismay, he found that the spellbinders had not arrived. The chairman insisted that Wilkins must say something. He stood up was introduced and said everything he could think of. After he had been talking what seemed to him two hours, but in reality was not more than fifteen minutes, he gave out entirely and sat down. There was a dense silence, not a person in the hall applauded. Then the chairman arose and said: "If there is anybody in the hall that can make a speech we will be glad to hear him."—K. C. Journal.

Ben Blades and Lee Gregory, of Mineola, were in town Tuesday.

Sheriff Wilson was in Jonesburg Sunday.
